

Application: 10002,569 E.V.E. Emergency Vehicle Environment

USPTO:

SIFW

1. The "08-28-2003 Specification" sent to the USPTO was recorded by the USPTO as 2 pages long. The USPTO Express Mail receipt has the envelope weighing 10 ounces. The USPTO recorded receiving a total of only 6 pages from that mailing. Six pages do not weigh ten ounces. The USPTO lost the remainder of the Specification pages, then assigned the lateness, error 1.
2. The "03-10-2004 Miscellaneous Incoming Letter" sent to the USPTO informs the USPTO of my new mailing address. The "03-16-2004 Miscellaneous Action with SSP" assigns a late fee for the Specification that the USPTO lost in error 1 above. Then the USPTO mails the late fee notification to my old address, error 2.
3. The "08-09-2004 Miscellaneous Incoming Letter" sent to the USPTO asks about the "Untimely (Late) Amendment Filed" on the USPTO's website's "Transaction History", because the USPTO has never told me yet, because the letter was returned to the USPTO, because the USPTO sent it to the wrong address. Since I didn't get a response, I thought all was well, because the USPTO realized that it had lost the Specifications in error 1, and now had another copy resent. Never telling me there was an amount to send, even after asking about it, was error 3.
4. The only time I talked with the Examiner, Daniel Previl, he never mentioned any problem. If I were ever informed of a problem, why would I do nothing? Not telling me on the phone was error 4.
4. The "06-30-2005 Abandonment" by the USPTO instead of contacting me by: email, street address, work phone and/or cell phone, to make sure that I was informed of a problem, was error 5.

In other words, the USPTO lost my amended specifications, then incorrectly assigns them late, attempts to inform me of this by sending this information to my old address, when the USPTO already had my new address, then doesn't check for a new address when the letter is returned, then the Examiner calls me and mentions nothing, and then finally the USPTO abandons the application, without even a simple email.

Can this Application be restarted and what is the cost?
